

James Coan

[REDACTED]

To: James Coan; Michele Smith

Subject: Fascinating!!!

I have always wondered why "John Adams" had a link to the "Foothill Cities Blog" featured prominently on the "Free Whitewater" site. I think I just found the answer. There is a prominent reporter and blogger who has worked for different newspapers in Pomona, Pasadena and Claremont as a political reporter since 1997. He is 34 years old and his name is Gary [REDACTED]. There are even 2 photos of him accompanying one of the articles he wrote (www.pomona.edu/Magazine/PCMW/in02/CRbraverman.shtml)

[REDACTED] think the next step would be to see if [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] have an older son named Gary who is a political writer, reporter and blogger in Los Angeles.

[REDACTED]

WOW!!!! BINGO!!!! I just found a long, detailed, fascinating article by Gary [REDACTED] in the archives of the "FOOTHILL CITIES BLOG" on the legal rights of bloggers, especially in small towns across the country as these bloggers turn their sights on their local city halls and city governments. This article, written by Gary [REDACTED], is INCREDIBLE because he states, in lengthier and more detailed form, all the same arguments that "John Adams" wrote about with a link on "Free Whitewater". Here is the link to Gary [REDACTED] article in the "Foothill Cities Blog" - www.insidesocal.com/editors/2007/09/. It was written on September 28, 2007.

[REDACTED]